Heisenburgian Love Song

I glimpsed you this morning, you me, obliging little adjustments to countless acts forever. Without each other thus we'd be discrete in Death.